

I strongly oppose the petition by Bank of America and other banks to contact former customers by telephone. As a former bank customer, I have no desire to receive calls disrupting my home life from a business I no longer patronize. I had my telephone turned off out of frustration from callers who disregarded the no-call list. My wife and alternately have worked night shifts, sleeping during daytime hours. We were frequently called in the middle of our night by telemarketers even though our name was on the no-call list. Please, do not permit this action by banks to proceed.
Respectfully Submitted, Kevin Cavanaugh.
